EXHIBIT [REDACTED]

I am a Special Agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, assigned to the New York office in New York, N. Y. I have a Master of Science degree from Boston College, Boston, Massachusetts. I received a special field course of training and instruction in the examination and comparison of documents in the FBI Laboratory under scientific document examiners. I have studied books, attended seminars and conferences and examined many thousands of specimens. Upon becoming sufficiently qualified in this work I was granted authority to examine cases on my own responsibility. Since 1942 I have examined thousands of cases submitted, many thousands of specimens involving handwriting, handprinting, typewriting, alterations, paper, and other related instruments. I have qualified as an expert in questions of documents and provided testimony in Federal, State and Military Courts in this country.

I have examined and compared the documents referred to in the second hypothetical question of Exhibit 1. I am with respect to the statement in Lane's affidavit dated as last set forth: "That the Baltimore documents were not typed by one person, but by two, and that therefore the documents cannot have been all of them, as [REDACTED] said they did." I am based on this statement and the other affidavits of [REDACTED] (Exhibit 1-2).

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

EXHIBIT 1-1

I am a member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, assigned to the New York City office. I have a Master of Science degree from the University of Pennsylvania. I received a commission as a major and instruction in the art of detection of documents in the FBI Laboratory under the direction of Mr. J. Edgar Hoover. I have studied books, attended courses and conferences and examined many specimens of documents. I am becoming increasingly qualified in this work and am entering to examine cases on my own responsibility. I have examined thousands of other specimens, including thousands of specimens involving handwriting, identification, typewriting, alterations, paper, ink and other instruments. I have qualified as an examiner of documents and given testimony in Federal, State and Military Courts in this country.

I have examined the original documents referred to in the second paragraph of the letter to you with respect to the statement in your letter dated as follows: "That the following documents were not typed by one person, but by two, and that therefore Priscilla Rice cannot have typed all of them, as 'Lorraine' could do it." I have based this statement exclusively on the affidavit of Lorraine Rice (Exhibit 1-2).

PROPERTY OF FBI

This confidential report and its contents are loaned to you by the FBI and are not to be distributed outside of agency to which loaned.

McCarthy bases her conclusion upon a number of characteristics of her own copying and the intended meaning and significance of such terms as "habits of mind" are unfamiliar and meaningless to me. It is true that certain aspects of touch and form consist of significant clues an experienced typist can following habits and modes of her own, but these certainly cannot be applied to an inexperienced typist who is copying documents and obviously influenced by the form of the source material. Variation in pressure would be expected of the newspaper typists, but I find no more variation in pressure in the Baltimore documents than in the known standards. Also, differences in the color of the typed letters are not necessarily due to a difference in pressure, but there are no largely to uneven rubbing in the ribbon and it does not take an expert to see that there is frequently greater variation in the darkness of the type in a single document than there is between documents in the Baltimore documents.

As to form, I found the left-hand margins of the Baltimore documents very widely and so do the known standards; on the Baltimore documents, where the exhibit is more than one page, the page numbers are composed of a dash on either side of the number separated by a space, thus: - 2 -. Instances such as Baltimore Exhibit 1, page 1, and known standard Government Exhibit 30 show this same feature.

I do not agree with the statement made by Lane in his trial report: "That neither Freckler nor Alger has made the pencil corrections on the Baltimore documents." He bases this exclusively on the affidavit of Elizabeth Roberts (Exhibit 45-1).

Roberts states that "....the penciled corrections give the appearance of having been made in one continuous operation rather than at the separate times when the separate pages should have been typed." She gives nothing to support this statement or show how she determines the relative age of pencil markings. As a matter of fact, the writing substance in pencil lead is graphite which is chemically so stable that no change can be detected over a period of many years. It is, therefore, not susceptible to chemical tests which are applied to ink writing to show chemical or physical changes.

McCortley states: "The corrections and proof-reading marks were made with a soft, graphite-black pencil, in approximately the same condition of hardness and lightness throughout,...." I found that the variation in the smoothness of pencil leads of the same grade and type, particularly those of mechanical pencils, is very slight. Further, the physical manner in which graphite rubs off on the surface of paper does not leave a well-defined line which can be measured with the same accuracy as the diameter of the pencil lead itself, and I, therefore, feel it is impossible to say how many pencils were used in the various pencil markings on the Baltimore documents and the statements of McCortley as to the time of these markings are not based on possible findings and, consequently, her claim is unavailing.

McCortley further states, "I have studied numerous samples of the handwriting of Alger and Iriscaglia Lico, as well as samples of documents furnished to me as taken from Alger Lico's files in the 1940's and showing his corrections and proof-reading habits. An up of even neither Alger nor Iriscaglia Lico could have done the pencil markings on the documents." I do not believe that the few brief markings comprising the pencil corrections on the Baltimore documents are sufficient for any accurate or valuable conclusions; and that writing characteristics are insufficient to determine whether any particular person or persons did or did not make these marks; nor is it possible to give a valid conclusion as to the number of persons who made these markings. I just do not feel that any competent expert would attempt to reach a conclusion on so limited material, if based solely on technical considerations without influence or bias.

The defense attorney, Mr. [redacted] adds that "spectrographic analysis of the typewriting ink at the edges of the pages which were cut off in the middle of line-and-letters might have enabled us to prove more effectively that the cutting was done after the typing. The Government would not let us make the excisions necessary for this analysis."

The Baltimore documents are of two different sizes: 8 1/2" x 11" and 8" x 10 1/2", both of which are common letterhead and second sheet sizes. Hornum states in his affidavit, referring to his category B (the 8" x 10 1/2" papers) that "from the arrangement of the typing on the pages of the documents in category B, including the observable narrow margins and the frequent slicing of the edge of the paper through the typed letters at the right margin, it appears probable that at some time after the typing was done all the sheets in this category were cut down from some other size or sizes to the present 8" x 10 1/2" size." Hornum does not claim or even suggest as Lane does in his footnote that a spectrographic examination would have supported this contention which "appears probable."

I feel that a spectrographic approach is scientifically unsound. A microscopic examination, however, shows that the black ink of the typewriter ribbon can be observed to be present on Baltimore Exhibits 11 and 15, pages 1, on the edges of the paper where the typing was run over and, therefore, shows that the paper was this size when the typing was done. Due to the thinness of the paper, this cannot be accurately observed in all instances, but is present sufficiently to show that the claim and conclusion on this point are in error.

On the contrary, I believe the narrow margins on the right sides of many of the Baltimore documents and the few instances where the type ran off the edges of the paper on the 6" x 10 1/2" sheets are almost certainly due to the failure of the typeset to reach the margin stops for the narrower size paper.

Defense attorney Chester Lane states as his fifth point: "That the two categories show such different characteristics of aging and discoloration that they cannot have been stored together for ten years in a single envelope, and therefore cannot all have been kept in the envelope which Chambers recovered from the dumbwaiter." Lane bases this statement exclusively on the statement of Daniel P. Herring in his affidavit (Exhibit 40-111).

Herring stated in his affidavit that 1943 documents in category A (6 1/2" x 11") are heavily yellowed and show signs of age over substantial portions of their area to a degree not apparent in any of the documents in category B (6" x 10 1/2"). The appearance of the paper in the category A documents is very similar to that of Government Manifest paper known to have been stored in ordinary office files from 1937 to 1942. The appearance of the paper in the category B documents is that of sheets which have been subjected to deteriorating conditions which were not uniform across the area of the sheets."

The effects of age on the Baltimore documents are not uniform across their areas and should not be because these documents were obviously folded in fours for a considerable period of time. For example, Baltimore Exhibit C shows progressively increasing yellowing in the upper right portion of the pages and also progressively increasing discoloration along the folds. There is a long yellow stain visible on Exhibit D violet light which almost bisects the upper left portion of the last five pages of this exhibit. It is again located in, or on, more intense, revealing the markings on the last two pages.

Additionally, there is a worn area and a hole in the center of page 13 where the folds intersect. We observe that these types of characteristics that they permit the arrangement and folding in the manner in which they were stored.

Korman states: ".....variations in heat and humidity being in particular responsible for variations in the rate of aging and yellowing of paper. On view of the fact that most of the papers in both category 1 and category 2 are of the same general class (predominantly standard bond paper) and show no chemical idiosyncrasies (such as abnormal lign concentrations which would be reflected in abnormal coloration), I concluded that the two categories of documents could not have been stored together under the same storage conditions for most of their existence."

The inference that papers of the same general class will show the same aging characteristics is without foundation. For more important are variations in such constituents as resin (sizing material), wax, lignin and hemicellulose. Bonded paper is particularly susceptible to yellowing and aging and these changes are accelerated by heat and light. Consequently, whether or not they are of the same class, they cannot be expected to show the same aging characteristics if they are not identical in composition.

With reference to the number of typewriter ribbons, the Korman affidavit states as follows: "Although the penultimate corrections would appear, as I have said, to have been made in one operation, examination of the ribbon markings appearing on the original documents makes it seem extremely unlikely that the documents were typed in a normal single continuous operation, or even consecutively by the same person over a period of three months. I base this observation on the fact that the ink on documents dated on the same day sometimes differs radically in color, documents dated within a few days of each other likewise show ink of different shades, and documents typed on the same day show ink of much the same color. At least four, and probably more, ribbons were used, and if the documents were typed consecutively according to their dates it would appear that these four or more ribbons were alternately being put on and taken off the machine, sometimes daily, or every day or so. The best ribbon, making the lightest and clearest impressions, was used only once, in Exhibit Document No. 5. I do not undertake to suggest any explanation as to why this alternation of ribbons may have taken place, but merely point out that it appears entirely inconsistent with the normal use of a typewriter.

This statement concerns myself of efforts to justify any claim which might be made. It first says that one phase of the preparation of the documents, the pencil corrections, was made in one operation, and turns right around and says that another phase, the typing, was probably not done consecutively or even over a period of three months. Actually, the color of the typewriter impressions varies very much, but as may be readily observed, the type impressions of the individual letters will vary as much on one document as they will between documents. Obviously, variations in pressure and varying amounts of ink on a good ribbon will result in different color impressions. Exhibit Document 9 is on bond paper and would be expected to take a heavier impression than the thin manila paper of the other documents. I do not presume to say whether one or more ribbons were used because there is not sufficient evidence to permit any such statement.

No definite statement can be found in the Exhibit affidavit in support of the claim that four or more ribbons were used. The above cited "The Holtzner documents are all on poor types of paper with inadequate sizing and a high degree of absorbency. In some instances the ribbons were apparently moist. These factors resulted in obscuring the exact characteristics of the type....."

The affidavit of [redacted] states "Mr. [redacted] asked me to make a separate study of the ribbon thread counts visible on the typed Holtzner documents. This study has established to our satisfaction that at least four ribbons were used in the typing of these documents. Interaction in the use of the various ribbons bears no discernible relationship to any possible grouping of the documents by their dates; in fact, in a number of instances the documents dated some time apart are typed with a ribbon of one thread count while other documents with dates in between are typed with a ribbon of a different count."

Unexplained are the use of the terms "given" and "different" counts. It is not one cited for verification or refutation. Even if it were possible to make an accurate thread count of each and every letter of the Holtzner documents, a difference in thread count would not justify a statement that "at least four ribbons were used." Considerable variation will be found throughout the [redacted] of the various ribbons. I have made inquiries as to the general specifications governing the ribbon thread counts of typewriter ribbons and according to Federal Specifications [redacted] it is permissible for grade A cotton ribbons to have a variation of five threads per inch in either the vertical or horizontal threads. In view of this, I feel there is no basis for an accurate determination as to the number of typewriter ribbons used in typing the Holtzner documents.

On April 24, 1968, I examined the dark-inked print in the Levine home where the Saltzman documents were allegedly hidden by Levine at the request of Chambers. I observed numerous white print letterings similar to those appearing on the envelope, Government Exhibit 18, in the immediate area where Government Exhibit 18 allegedly was placed. I removed samples of the print from the area and brought them back to the FBI Laboratory in Washington where I turned them over to Special Agent J. William [redacted].

Alger C. Liss, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

I am a Special Agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, assigned to the Laboratory in Washington, D. C., as a qualified examiner of questions of documents. I have set forth my qualifications in detail by affidavit executed by me March 8, 1952, for filing in connection with a motion for a new trial of Alger Liss on the ground of newly discovered evidence. --

I have reviewed a photostatic copy of Elizabeth McCarthy's affidavit executed April 14, 1952. In page C she states that "it is a common habit of most typists, when an incorrect letter is struck, to go to the carriage back and strike over the wrong letter with the right one. The normal and correct universal tendency, in doing this, is to strike the second, correct, letter more heavily, so as to obliterate the first, incorrect, impression." She states that she finds no less than 27 instances in the Baltimore documents where this habit is reversed and the incorrect letter is struck more heavily than the correct one. She further states there is "no such instances" in any of the Liss Standards. I find there are more than 325 strike-overs in the Baltimore documents, and even if her statement were true, the presence of 27 instances where the habit is reversed in a total of 325 strike-overs would in itself show the intentions of the typist to follow the procedure of the "direct universal tendency." In the interest of space the more than 350 typewriting strike-outs appearing on the Baltimore documents are not listed here, but 50 typewriting strike-outs occurring in the Baltimore documents are set forth below:

As a result of a microscopic study of the depth of typewritten corrections on the Baltimore Documents, I found not 27 but 10 clear instances where the first, incorrect impression was struck with more force than the correcting impression. This same reversal of the normal habit was also found to be present in the known standard, Government Exhibit 30, page 2; the reverse of the normal habit occurs in the word "meetings" where the correcting letter "n" is struck lighter than the original incorrect letter "t." Elizabeth McCarthy's statement that "no such instance" occurs in the Kiss Standards is in error. There are listed below three instances where the correcting letter is struck lighter than the original incorrect letter on the Baltimore Documents.

1. I am a Special Agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, United States Department of Justice, and I am assigned to the FBI Laboratory in Washington, D. C. I have been so assigned since January, 1950. Prior to my employment with the Federal Bureau of Investigation I attended the University of Mississippi where I received the Bachelor of Arts and Master of Science degrees in chemistry in 1944 and 1946, respectively. I attended the University of Texas for three years and was graduated by that school in 1938 with a Doctor of Philosophy degree in chemistry. During my employment with the Federal Bureau of Investigation I have examined thousands of pieces of evidence by the use of both chemical and physical methods.

2. I have examined a sample of paint given to me by Special Agent James C. Cadigan of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who represented the sample to me as coming from the dumb-waiter shaft in the Levine home. I have also examined paint on the brown envelope, Government Exhibit 19 (G19C), and found the paint on this envelope to be of the same color, texture and composition as the paint from the dumb-waiter shaft. From the examinations conducted, I conclude that the paint on Government Exhibit 19 (G19C) could have originated from the same source as the paint from the dumb-waiter shaft in the Levine home.

C., of March 7, 1950, there appeared a newspaper article to the effect that Donald Hiss, brother of Alger Hiss, was receiving instructions in the Catholic Church from the Right Reverend Fulton J. Sheen. Another governmental agency has advised that on December 1, 1950, Donald Hiss filed an application for passport, indicating that he desired to travel to England, France and Switzerland on business for a Swiss client concerning litigation and related matters. This passport was issued.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION

Information concerning Donald Hiss is set forth in the report of Special Agent Joseph M. Kelly, dated March 30, 1949, at New York City, in the case entitled "Alger Hiss, Perjury, Espionage - R, Internal Security - R," a copy of which report was furnished to Assistant Attorney General Campbell on April 5, 1949.

Attention is also called to the report of Special Agent Thomas G. Spencer, dated May 11, 1949, at New York City, entitled "Jay David Whittaker Chambers, Was., et al, Perjury, Espionage - R, Internal Security - R," a copy of which was furnished to Assistant Attorney General Campbell on June 7, 1949.

Information concerning Donald Hiss is also contained in a report of Special Agent James P. Martin, dated June 22, 1949, at New York City, entitled "William Edward Crane, Was., Espionage - R," a copy of which was furnished to the Department of Justice on December 29, 1950.

Howard Rushmore, who appeared as a witness before the Washington State Un-American Activities Committee on July 21, 1948, testified in part as follows: "Back in 1934, a man named Harold Ware returned from Russia bringing with him a considerable amount of money and out of a violin studio operated by his sister, at DuPont Circle, Headquarters were established for a unique espionage organization. Ware had contacts with some party members in Washington. Gradually they brought into this highly secret cell of the CP, Lee Pressman, of the War Labor Board, now a candidate for Congress on the Wallace Ticket in Brooklyn. Another was Donald Hiss, at that time in Wallace's Triple A."

The September 3, 1946, issue of the publication "Counter-attack" set out information concerning an interview between Whittaker Chambers and Adolf Berle. The article stated in part that Isaac Don Levine arranged a meeting in September, 1939, between Whittaker Chambers and Adolf Berle "so that Chambers could tell Adolf Berle what he knew about the actions of two interlocking rings in various Governmental departments and agencies...Chambers gave names of many persons involved, saying

"they were Communist Party members, other Communists' fellow travelers and sympathizers. But, as Isaac Levine recalls it, he didn't try to clarify as to these persons specifically, naming those who were Party members and those who weren't. That question never came up. Whole subject of the conversation was what these persons were doing. Among those named were Alger and Donald Hiss."

The August 6, 1948, issue of "Counterattack" again referred to the conversation between Adolf Berle and Whittaker Chambers in September, 1939. Under the heading, "Whittaker Chambers' Talks With Assistant Secretary of State, Adolf Berle," "Counterattack" reported "At that time, Alger and Donald Hiss held comparatively minor positions in State Department... In February, 1941, Dean Acheson became an Assistant Secretary of State, and, in 1945, rose to Under-Secretary... It was under Acheson that Alger and Donald Hiss rose to positions of power. When he was asked about them, he said he had known them since boyhood..."

According to the "Times Herald" of Washington, D.C., dated February 21, 1948, Representative R. Shafer of Michigan characterized the disclosure that many former New Dealers were registered as agents of foreign powers as evidence that "These men have been making big business out of our foreign loan program for their own personal gain. It has been big business ever since we started making the loans and these disclosures merely back up what I've been saying all along... These men, Acheson, Currie, Harry D. White, Oscar Cox, Randolph Feltus, John E. Pehle, Donald Hiss, Nathan, and others have turned our foreign aid program into big business at great personal gain."

The December 20, 1948, issue of Newsweek Magazine published an article entitled, "Is America Safe for Spies?". The article read in part, "Chambers was one of the men who worked for the late Harold Ware, son of the veteran Communist leader, Ella Reeve Bloor. Operating secretly in Washington, Ware set up the first Communist cell in the Department of Agriculture. It was Ware who, according to Chambers' later testimony, dominated the 'elite' cell which included Alger Hiss, former high State Department official, Donald Hiss, Lee Pressman, Nathan Witt, Henry Collins, and other minor New Deal figures."

According to the "Times Herald" of Washington, D.C., dated January 19, 1949, after the Senate confirmed Dean G. Acheson as Secretary of State on January 18, 1949, Senator Vandenberg, G.O.P. foreign policy spokesman in the Senate, read a statement from the secretary-designate in which he pledged "total and aggressive hostility" to subversives in the State Department. In the statement Acheson restated his attitude toward Donald and Alger Hiss who were accused by former Communist, Whittaker Chambers, as being members of a prewar Communist "apparatus" operating in the Government.

As read by Vandenberg, the statement contained "an assertion of personal friendship for the Hiss brothers, a staunch defense of Donald Hiss and a purpose to leave Alger Hiss to the courts."

The following is an abstract of information from a pamphlet entitled, "The Case Against Dean Acheson," written by Victor Lasky, co-author of "Seeds of Treason."

"When Arthur Bliss Lane, former Ambassador to Poland learned of Dean Acheson's appointment as Secretary of State he blurted out: 'God help the United States.' It was no secret although Mr. Lane refused to discuss the matter with the press that his perhaps undiplomatic outburst was occasioned by his bitter experience trying to block a 90 million dollar post-war loan to the Soviet-controlled Warsaw regime.

"Appealing to the State Department to refuse the loan, Mr. Lane had pointed to the Red terror in Poland, the arrests of American citizens and the crushing of all freedoms. He added: 'With the greatest earnestness of which I am capable I beg the Department not to approve the extension of any credits at this time.'

"Nevertheless, the loan was granted with the approval of Dean Acheson, then Under Secretary of State. It had been negotiated by Donald Hiss, brother of Alger and a member of Mr. Acheson's law firm. As it turned out Mr. Lane was right. The loan was used to strengthen Soviet control of Poland."

It is noted that in the Hearings before the Committee on Un-American Activities, House of Representatives, 80th Congress, Second Session, on August 13, 1948, Donald Hiss in sworn testimony stated that he was not and never had been a member of the Communist Party, or "any formal or informal organizations affiliated with or fronting in any manner whatsoever for the Communist Party.

RESULTS OF INVESTIGATION

An Agent of this office contacted the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, commonly known as the Dies Committee, and was advised that the basis for placing Mr. HISS' name on the list furnished to the Attorney General is the appearance of his name on a list in the possession of the Dies Committee, entitled "Washington Committee for Democratic Action". As of December 23, 1941, this office was advised by the Dies Committee that its files contain no further information to support the allegation.

A source of information, herein designated as T-1, advised this office that the name of DONALD HISS does not in fact appear in the active indices of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action. However, the informant advised the name of Mrs. DONALD HISS, 2913 N Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., does appear in the active indices of that organization.

A source of information, herein designated as T-2, who is an employee of the Department of State, advised that while he is not well acquainted with DONALD HISS, he is acquainted with his brother, ALGER HISS. T-2 stated that he at one time heard that the HISS brothers were classed as "fellow travelers". He stated, however, that he is not aware of the basis for the information and has had no cause to doubt the loyalty of ALGER HISS, and in so far as his limited knowledge extends, of DONALD HISS.

A source of information, herein designated as T-3, who is an employee of the Department of State, advised that he is not well acquainted with DONALD HISS, except through hearsay. In this regard, he stated that DONALD HISS and his brother, ALGER HISS, are considered to be "liberals" and that the informant, from his version of what he has heard concerning them, would class them as "left Socialists".

A source of information, herein designated as T-4, who resides in the vicinity of Mr. HISS' residence, advised that she has known Mr. and Mrs. HISS as a neighbor and has gone with them socially. She stated that she is acquainted with no affiliations of Mr. HISS other than the fact that he has in the past occupied a portion of his time as a lecturer at Catholic University Law School. The informant stated that Mrs. HISS is a very active woman and participates in civic affairs. She stated that Mrs. HISS is now affiliated with one of the Civilian Defense organizations. This informant stated she has never observed any conversation of Mr. or Mrs. HISS which would indicate sympathy with subversive movements and has no doubt of their loyalty to the democratic principles.

A source of information herein designated as T-5, who resides in the vicinity of Mr. HISS' residence and who professes to be a close social acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. HISS, stated that she has never observed anything which would lead her to question their loyalty. The informant stated that Mr. HISS has worked intermittently as a secretary to Mr. Justice FRANKFURTER. The informant stated that most of Mr. HISS' time has been occupied by his employment at the State Department and his lectures at night at Catholic University. Informant described Mrs. HISS as being an extremely active person who participates in numerous civic activities, and who is presently affiliated with the American Women Volunteers. The informant does not recall that Mr. or Mrs. HISS have ever mentioned membership in the Washington Committee for Democratic Action or groups of a similar nature. Informant stated that the close associates of Mr. and Mrs. HISS included HERBERT FEIS of the State Department, Mr. and Mrs. CLEIGHTON PEET, Mr. JOHN HENRY, an employee of the Washington Star, JAMES ROSE of the Department of Justice, and JAMES ROOSEVELT.

A source of information herein designated as T-6, who resides in the vicinity of Mr. HISS' residence, and who advised that he has been acquainted with Mr. HISS since his days at Harvard Law School, stated that he considers Mr. HISS to be "liberal minded", but that he has never been aware of Mr. HISS' membership in any "liberal organizations". He stated that no conversation or actions of Mr. HISS have indicated he is connected with or has sympathy with Communism.

A source of information herein designated as T-7, who maintains files concerning subversive activities in the District of Columbia, advised that the name of DONALD HISS does not appear in his files.

A source of information herein designated as T-8, who professes to be familiar with subversive activities of Government employees, advised that the name of DONALD HISS is unknown to the informant.

Mr. HISS, on February 16, 1942, appeared in this office and after being sworn, made the following voluntary statement. Mr. HISS declined to return to the office and sign the statement, advising that due to the shortness of time he did not feel the necessity for so doing. The original of the statement is being maintained in the file of this office and copies are included in copies of this report. It will be noted from Mr. HISS's statement that he has recently been made Chief of the Foreign Funds Control Division of the Department of State, which information was not available in the personnel files of the State Department at the time those files were examined.

He added: 'With the greatest earnestness of which I am capable I beg the Department not to approve the extension of any credits at this time.'

"Nevertheless, the loan was granted with the approval of Dean Acheson, then Under Secretary of State. It had been negotiated by Donald Hiss, brother of Alger and a member of Mr. Acheson's law firm. As it turned out Mr. Lane was right. The loan was used to strengthen Soviet control of Poland."

It is noted that in the Hearings before the Committee on Un-American Activities, House of Representatives, 80th Congress, Second Session, on August 13, 1948, Donald Hiss in sworn testimony stated that he was not and never had been a member of the Communist Party, or "any formal or informal organizations affiliated with or fronting in any manner whatsoever for the Communist Party.

RESULTS OF INVESTIGATION

An Agent of this office contacted the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, commonly known as the Dies Committee, and was advised that the basis for placing Mr. HISS' name on the list furnished to the Attorney General is the appearance of his name on a list in the possession of the Dies Committee, entitled "Washington Committee for Democratic Action". As of December 23, 1941, this office was advised by the Dies Committee that its files contain no further information to support the allegation.

A source of information, herein designated as T-1, advised this office that the name of DONALD HISS does not in fact appear in the active indices of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action. However, the informant advised the name of Mrs. DONALD HISS, 2913 N Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., does appear in the active indices of that organization.

A source of information, herein designated as T-2, who is an employee of the Department of State, advised that while he is not well acquainted with DONALD HISS, he is acquainted with his brother, ALGER HISS. T-2 stated that he at one time heard that the HISS brothers were classed as "fellow travelers". He stated, however, that he is not aware of the basis for the information and has had no cause to doubt the loyalty of ALGER HISS, and in so far as his limited knowledge extends, of DONALD HISS.

A source of information, herein designated as T-3, who is an employee of the Department of State, advised that he is not well acquainted with DONALD HISS, except through hearsay. In this regard, he stated that DONALD HISS and his brother, ALGER HISS, are considered to be "liberals" and that the informant, from his version of what he has heard concerning them, would class them as "Left Socialists".

A source of information, herein designated as T-4, who resides in the vicinity of Mr. HISS' residence, advised that she has known Mr. and Mrs. HISS as a neighbor and has gone with them socially. She stated that she is acquainted with no affiliations of Mr. HISS other than the fact that he has in the past occupied a portion of his time as a lecturer at Catholic University Law School. The informant stated that Mrs. HISS is a very active woman and participates in civic affairs. She stated that Mrs. HISS is now affiliated with one of the Civilian Defense organizations. This informant stated she has never observed any conversation of Mr. or Mrs. HISS which would indicate sympathy with subversive movements and has no doubt of their loyalty to the democratic principles.

A source of information herein designated as T-5, who resides in the vicinity of Mr. HISS' residence and who professes to be a close social acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. HISS, stated that she has never observed anything which would lead her to question their loyalty. The informant stated that Mr. HISS has worked intermittently as a secretary to Mr. Justice FRANKFURTER. The informant stated that most of Mr. HISS' time has been occupied by his employment at the State Department and his lectures at night at Catholic University. Informant described Mrs. HISS as being an extremely active person who participates in numerous civic activities, and who is presently affiliated with the American Women Volunteers. The informant does not recall that Mr. or Mrs. HISS have ever mentioned membership in the Washington Committee for Democratic Action or groups of a similar nature. Informant stated that the close associates of Mr. and Mrs. HISS included HERBERT FEIS of the State Department, Mr. and Mrs. CLEIGHTON PEET, Mr. JOHN HENRY, an employee of the Washington Star, JAMES BONE of the Department of Justice, and JAMES ROOSEVELT.

A source of information herein designated as T-6, who resides in the vicinity of Mr. HISS' residence, and who advised that he has been acquainted with Mr. HISS since his days at Harvard Law School, stated that he considers Mr. HISS to be "liberal minded", but that he has never been aware of Mr. HISS' membership in any "liberal organizations". He stated that no conversation or actions of Mr. HISS have indicated he is connected with or has sympathy with Communism.

A source of information herein designated as T-7, who maintains files concerning subversive activities in the District of Columbia, advised that the name of DONALD HISS does not appear in his files.

A source of information herein designated as T-8, who professes to be familiar with subversive activities of Government employees, advised that the name of DONALD HISS is unknown to the informant.

Mr. HISS, on February 16, 1942, appeared in this office and after being sworn, made the following voluntary statement. Mr. HISS declined to return to the office and sign the statement, advising that due to the shortness of time he did not feel the necessity for so doing. The original of the statement is being maintained in the file of this office and copies are included in copies of this report. It will be noted from Mr. HISS's statement that he has recently been made Chief of the Foreign Funds Control Division of the Department of State, which information was not available in the personnel files of the State Department at the time those files were examined.

B. Espionage Allegations Made by WHITTAKER CHAMBERS.

JAY DAVID WHITTAKER CHAMBERS is an American citizen by virtue of his birth at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in 1901. CHAMBERS associated himself with the Communist Party in 1924. The Communist Party is among those organizations cited by the United States Attorney General as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835. In 1925 CHAMBERS contributed stories to the Daily Worker, an East Coast Communist newspaper, and shortly thereafter became a full-time employee of that paper, later becoming editor. In 1929 CHAMBERS was forced out of the editorship of the Daily Worker because of his opposition to the STALINIST tactics within the Party. CHAMBERS still considered himself a Communist after this time, but found out that other members of the Party would have nothing to do with him. From 1929 to 1932 CHAMBERS' chief employment was translating into English from the German and French languages. In 1930 or 1931 he wrote several stories which were published in "New Masses." (The House Committee on Un-American Activities in its report dated March 29, 1944, Pages 48 and 75 identified "New Masses" as "a nationally circulated weekly journal of the Communist Party.") CHAMBERS made peace with the Communist Party in 1932 and subsequently became editor of the "New Masses", a position he held for some months.

At the request of Communist Party leader MAX BEDICHT, CHAMBERS agreed to go into underground work for the Communist Party and thereupon severed all open connections with the Party. Late in 1934 CHAMBERS moved to Baltimore, Maryland and his activities in the Communist Party commenced to center around Washington, D. C. CHAMBERS acted as a courier in the Communist underground, where he made contacts with a Communist Party underground group consisting mainly of various Government employees. The main purpose of this underground Communist group at this time was to place Communist Party members in key Government positions. Incidental to this underground group's activities, CHAMBERS was furnished with classified information from Government records which CHAMBERS in turn furnished to his Russian espionage contact. CHAMBERS broke from the Communist Party in 1938. In 1939 he began his employment with "Time" magazine and remained with that magazine until his resignation in December, 1948 at which time he was one of the senior editors of the magazine.

On May 10, 1945 WHITTAKER CHAMBERS was interviewed by Special Agents HARLAND DANNER and EDWARD F. HUMMER of the New York Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. In the course of the interview CHAMBERS was questioned as to his knowledge of the activities of various individuals whose identity and activities were not readily traceable to underground organizations as such. CHAMBERS at that time furnished the names of some sixteen individuals, included among which was SCHLOMER ADLER (SOL ADLER). CHAMBERS stated that in 1939 he had furnished ADOLPH E. BERLE, Under Secretary of State, the names of certain individuals known to him as comprising a Communist Party underground group of Government employees. SCHLOMER ADLER (SOL ADLER) was listed in this group. He recalled that ADLER at that time, that is in 1937, was an employee of the Treasury Department.

CHAMBERS recalled that ADLER had been in close contact with CHAMBERS' Russian contact, J. PETERS, who was identified by CHAMBERS as a Soviet agent and acting head of the Soviet espionage underground movement in the United States. It is CHAMBERS' best recollection that J. PETERS had told him that ADLER was writing a weekly report on "Treasury Matters" for the Communist Party. CHAMBERS suspected that the Communist Party was playing the stock market and was utilizing ADLER'S financial information and acumen in this connection.

On April 6, 1949 CHAMBERS reviewed the notes taken by ADOLPH E. BERLE in September, 1939. From Mr. BERLE'S original notes under the heading of "Treasury" appears the following: "SCHLOMER ADLER (SOL ADLER?), Counsel's Office, sends weekly reports to Communist Party. (General Counsel's Office)" CHAMBERS commented concerning SCHLOMER ADLER that ADLER was always referred to as SCHLOMER and that he did not know his real name was SOLOMON until sometime after he, CHAMBERS, had broken from the Communist Party. Also in the early part of 1939 CHAMBERS advised it was his impression from conversations with HAROLD WARE and CHAMBERS' Russian contact that HARRY DEXTER WHITE had knowingly given positions in the Treasury Department to Communists. In this connection SOLOMON ADLER and HAROLD GLASSER (7) were specifically referred to.

HAROLD WARE, according to CHAMBERS, was the son of ELLA REEVES BLOOR, Communist Party leader, and it was HAROLD WARE who developed the underground Communist Party work in Washington, D. C.

Earlier in 1949 Mr. CHAMBERS had provided to Special Agents THOMAS G. SPENCE and FRANCIS K. PLANTE of the New York Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation information concerning the operation of what he termed espionage apparatus A. He stated that while he had been attempting to make other contacts for the apparatus HAROLD WARE had introduced him to one ROBERT COE (8) who was very close to HARRY DEXTER WHITE of the Treasury Department. He recalled ROBERT COE as a member of one of the cells of apparatus A, but did not know in which department of the Government he worked. COE'S older brother, FRANK COE (9), was at that time an Economics Instructor at McGill University in Canada to the best of CHAMBERS' recollection. He recalled hearing on several occasions from J. PETERS, ABRAHAM GEORGE SILVERMAN (10), HARRY DEXTER WHITE, and HAROLD WARE plans to bring FRANK COE from Canada so that he could be placed in the Treasury Department by HARRY DEXTER WHITE. It was CHAMBERS understanding that FRANK COE as well as his brother, ROBERT, was a member of the Communist Party.

CHAMBERS stated that at that time in 1935 HARRY DEXTER WHITE was the Monetary Expert in the Treasury Department. He was known to HAROLD WARE and J. PETERS as a strong sympathizer of the Communist Party and was closely tied in with the Communist Party through his friendship with ABRAHAM GEORGE SILVERMAN. It was CHAMBERS' impression from conversations with HAROLD WARE and J. PETERS that WHITE had knowingly given positions in the Treasury Department to Communists, particularly to SOLOMON ADLER and Dr. HAROLD GLASSER.

CHAMBERS stated WARE was of the opinion that HARRY DEXTER WHITE could produce some very interesting and valuable material and that ROBERT COE would be the person who would be able to obtain this information from WHITE. CHAMBERS brought this matter to PETERS' attention and the latter said it was all right to go ahead and approach WHITE. CHAMBERS recalled that on at least one occasion COE did get some documents from HARRY DEXTER WHITE, but could not remember exactly the contents.

CHAMBERS recalled also that J. PETERS had first introduced him to ABRAHAM GEORGE SILVERMAN approximately in early 1936. PETERS had informed CHAMBERS that he had been experiencing some difficulty in collecting SILVERMAN'S Communist Party dues. He had pointed out to CHAMBERS that SILVERMAN'S assignment was to keep in touch with HARRY DEXTER WHITE whom the apparatus considered a possible source of documentary information. PETERS directed CHAMBERS to handle SILVERMAN, see he paid his Communist Party dues on time, and to definitely make sure that he was doing everything possible to keep HARRY DEXTER WHITE in a "productive frame of mind." CHAMBERS contacted SILVERMAN quite often until his break with the Party in April of 1938, although his meetings with SILVERMAN were on no regularly scheduled basis.

Thus it can be seen the last seven named individuals were also named by Miss BENTLEY as active participants during the early 1940s in Russian espionage activities.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

It should be noted that during the hearings before the House Committee on Un-American Activities held August and September, 1948 VICTOR PERLO, ABRAHAM GEORGE SILVERMAN, WILLIAM LUDWIG ULLMAN, NATHAN GREGORY SILVERMASTER, JOHN APT, NATHAN WITT, and CHARLES KILMER all appeared in response to subpoenae and were questioned concerning the allegations of ELIZABETH TERRILL BENTLEY. All of the above-named individuals refused to affirm or deny membership in the Communist Party on the grounds of self-incrimination. These same witnesses on the same grounds refused to affirm or deny contacts with one or more of the forty individuals allegedly involved in Soviet espionage and refused to deny or affirm knowledge of our acquaintanceship with ELIZABETH TERRILL BENTLEY or WHITTAKER CHAMBERS. These same witnesses also refused to affirm or deny the charges made against them by WHITTAKER CHAMBERS and ELIZABETH TERRILL BENTLEY.

E. Communist Allegations Made by WHITTAKER CHAMBERS.

CHAMBERS stated that while he had no factual knowledge that SOLOMON ADLER actually was a Communist Party member he would feel that inasmuch as ADLER furnished an individual like J. PETERS with confidential information and inasmuch as J. PETERS had advised CHAMBERS that he had been in close contact with SOLOMON ADLER, he, CHAMBERS, had little doubt that ADLER must have been a Communist Party member in order to associate with a man so highly placed in the Communist Party.

On February 9, 1949 Special Agents LEO J. FITZSIMMONS and ROBERT F. X. O'KANE of the New York Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation interviewed J. PETERS, aka ALEXANDER STEVENS, 8346 118th Street, Kew Gardens, Long Island, New York. PETERS was interviewed in the presence of Attorney EMANUEL ELOCH, 270 Broadway, New York City. PETERS stated he would not furnish information concerning SOLOMON ADLER on the ground that he did not want to sacrifice his rights under the United States Constitution in that any admission on his part might tend to incriminate him. He stated this decision must necessarily follow inasmuch as he had already testified before a Federal Grand Jury in New York City and to be consistent with his attitude on that occasion he must, without admitting he knew ADLER, decline to furnish any information. He volunteered the information that he had declined to answer before the Federal Grand Jury pertinent question concerning his activities with WHITTAKER CHAMBERS and other individuals involved in an alleged Communist underground in Washington, D. C. during the years 1935 to 1938.

J. PETERS voluntarily departed the United States on May 8, 1949 for Budapest Hungary under a deportation order.

[REDACTED]

121-847

[REDACTED]

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS named VICTOR PERLO as a participant in a Communist Party underground group during the period 1934 to 1938.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS stated that shortly after his first visit to Washington, D. C., the leading figures in espionage apparatus A. had assembled to hold a meeting in the apartment of one HENRY COLLINS. Among these leading members was VICTOR PERLO.

121-847

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

WALTER CHAMBERS in 1949 recalled that HARRY DEXTER WHITE, approximately in 1937, was providing information to ABRAHAM GEORGE SILVERMAN and to CHAMBERS. He had first met WHITE in 1935 but since it appeared WHITE disliked him personally he was unable to obtain information from him. WHITE, however, during this period (1935-1937) several times volunteered to write and submit to the Soviet Government a plan for the reorganization of its money or its finances.

Early in 1937 WHITE commenced providing CHAMBERS with documents from the Treasury Department but his transmissions were irregular and in small quantities.

Sometime in 1937 at Washington, D. C., SILVERMAN and CHAMBERS effected an introduction of WHITE and Colonel BORIS BYKOV, CHAMBERS' Soviet espionage principal. He recalled specifically that WHITE had turned over to him material dealing with a list of Japanese agents and Chinese agents in Japanese employ; reports of the Office of Naval Intelligence; plus a verbal report WHITE gave him of a meeting between Russian Ambassador OJMANSKY and HENRY MORSENTHAU, Secretary of the Treasury. These documents were produced by WHITE intermittently from early 1937 until April, 1938, when CHAMBERS broke with the Communist Party.

J. PETERS, aka Alexander Stevens (6)

In 1949 WHITTAKER CHAMBERS advised that approximately in 1936 J. PETERS had mentioned the name SOLOMON ADLER to him. CHAMBERS stated he had never seen this individual but according to PETERS, ADLER was writing a weekly report on Treasury matters for the Communist Party. CHAMBERS identified J. PETERS as a Soviet agent and acting head of a Soviet espionage underground movement. In his appearances before Boston Informants T-2 and T-8, Government agencies, SOLOMON ADLER stated he did not know J. PETERS under that name or any aliases. PETERS who was deported to Hungary from the United States in 1950 advised in 1949 that he had refused before a Federal Grand Jury in New York City to state whether or not he knew SOLOMON ADLER and likewise would not provide this information to the Federal Bureau of Investigation because by doing so his rights under the Constitution of the United States would be jeopardized.

121-847

HAROLD GLASSER (7)

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS also identified HAROLD GLASSER as a participant in a Communist Party underground group functioning in Washington, D. C. during the period 1934 to 1938.

[REDACTED]

121-847

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

WHITAKER CHAMBERS stated that J. PETERS, Soviet espionage agent, introduced CHAMBERS to HAROLD GLASSER, an employee of the Treasury Department who was apparently a close friend of HARRY DEXTER WHITE. GLASSER had attempted to get WHITE to provide information concerning Treasury Department matters but evidently was unsuccessful at that time.

PETERS had informed CHAMBERS that GLASSER had a very high opinion of WHITE as a Communist Party sympathizer and had further informed CHAMBERS that WHITE had "stocked the Treasury Department with people who were either members of the Communist Party or sympathizers."

121-847

[REDACTED]

It will be recalled that WHITTAKER CHAMBERS identified ROBERT COE as a member of one of the cells of espionage apparatus A as well as a member of the Communist Party. CHAMBERS pointed out that HAROLD WARE had introduced him to ROBERT COE who at that time was a very close friend of HARRY DEXTER WHITE of the Treasury Department. He stated WARE was of the opinion that WHITE could produce some interesting and valuable material and that ROBERT COE would be the person who would be able to obtain this information from WHITE. J. PETERS thereupon gave permission to CHAMBERS to have WHITE approached through ROBERT COE. CHAMBERS remembers that on at least one occasion COE did get some documents from HARRY DEXTER WHITE.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

121-847

The above-mentioned 1939 notes of ADOLPH A. BERLE identified BOB COE as "in the Communist Party's 'Foreign Bureau'," according to WHITTAKER CHAMBERS.

121-847

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

ELIZABETH BENTLEY identified V. FRANK COE as one of those individuals included in the so-called SILVERMASTER apparatus. Likewise, WHITTAKER CHAMBERS identified FRANK COE as a participant in a Communist Party underground group which functioned in Washington, D. C. during the period 1934 to 1938.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

121-847

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS in 1949 identified SILVERMAN as a participant in a Communist Party underground group in Washington, D. C. during the period 1934 to 1938.

[REDACTED]

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS stated that all of the leaders in apparatus A and the members of the various cells were dues paying members of the Communist Party. He recalled that the dues at that time were based on a certain percentage of the member's salary. He explained that those individuals in apparatus A could not participate in any open Communist work which would divulge their underground Party activity. Consequently, as they were enthusiastic and anxious to be known as Party members, the fact of contributing high dues to the Party was somewhat in substitution of the activities of an open member of the Communist Party. CHAMBERS recalled that these high dues caused hardship to some of the members but the only one who ever complained to him of their being high was SILVERMAN.

He went on to state that HARRY DEXTER WHITE'S close tie with the Communist Party came about as a result of his friendship with SILVERMAN and that J. PETERS had explained to him that SILVERMAN'S principal position in the apparatus was to keep in touch with WHITE. PETERS also impressed on CHAMBERS that he must see to it that SILVERMAN paid his Communist Party dues on time.

She stated the following persons were friends of the SILVERMANS and visited them at the SILVERMAN home: HARRY DEXTER WHITE, FRANK COE, NATHAN GREGORY SILVERMASTER, WILLIAM LUDWIG ULLMAN, LAUCHLIN CURRIE, and PRISCILLA HISS.

121-847

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS stated that ABRAHAM GEORGE SILVERMAN had talked of LAUCHLIN CURRIE repeatedly and had described him as a "sympathizer of the Communist Party." CHAMBERS added, however, that he, himself, had no direct knowledge nor in fact did he believe that CURRIE was ever a member of any underground apparatus of the Communist Party. He related that SILVERMAN told him that on more than one occasion that CURRIE used to give him, SILVERMAN, stock market tips. SILVERMAN gave CHAMBERS to understand that he bought and sold stocks for himself on the basis of this information. CHAMBERS stated he also gathered from SILVERMAN that LAUCHLIN CURRIE was a close friend of HARRY DEXTER WHITE.

[REDACTED]

121-847

[REDACTED]

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS identified IRVING KAPLAN as a participant in the Communist Party underground group in Washington, D. C. during the period 1934 to 1938.

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS stated that about the time he planned to break away from the Communist Party he proposed to J. PETERS that the Party get him a job in the Federal Government. PETERS agreed to the proposal. Thereafter CHAMBERS approached ABRAHAM GEORGE SILVERMAN and told him he wanted a Government job. SILVERMAN sent him to IRVING KAPLAN, who at that time was co-head of the National Research Project. CHAMBERS stated he had known KAPLAN at Columbia University in New York City and requested KAPLAN not to tell SILVERMAN the true name of WHITTAKER CHAMBERS. KAPLAN had CHAMBERS work out a list of past employments which he, CHAMBERS, turned over to GEORGE SILVERMAN. Two or three days later CHAMBERS had a position in the National Research Project.

[REDACTED]

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS in 1949 identified CHARLES KRAMER as a participant in a Communist Party underground group functioning in the vicinity of Washington D. C. during the years 1934 to 1938.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS in 1949 recalled going to the apartment of CHARLES KRAMER on one occasion when a cell meeting of the Communist Party was taking place. However, since CHAMBERS did not wish to see the people present and likewise did not wish them to see him, he left immediately.

Concerning the information supplied by WHITTAKER CHAMBERS in 1939 to ADOLPH L. BERLE of the State Department, CHAMBERS in 1949 while reviewing Mr. BERLE'S pencilled notations, identified CHARLES KRAMER as an employee of the LaFOLLETTE Committee.

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS identified JOHN AET as a participant in a Communist Party underground espionage group functioning in the vicinity of Washington, D. C. during the period 1934 to 1938.

CHAMBERS stated that shortly after his first visit to Washington, D. C. he visited the apartment of one HENRY COLLINS where the leading group in espionage apparatus A had assembled to hold the meeting. CHAMBERS identified JOHN AET as being present at this particular meeting. WHITTAKER CHAMBERS in 1949 identified NATHAN WITT as a participant in a Communist Party underground espionage group functioning in the vicinity of Washington, D. C. during the period 1934 to 1938. Mrs. KATHRYN WILLS PERLO, divorced wife of VICTOR PERLO, in 1944 identified NATHAN WITT as a member of a Communist underground espionage group functioning in Washington, D. C. prior to that time.

It will be recalled that WHITTAKER CHAMBERS stated that during his first visit to Washington, D. C. he visited the home of one HENRY COLLINS in Washington, D. C. at a time when the leading group in espionage apparatus A had assembled to hold a meeting. CHAMBERS was introduced to those individuals present and after some casual conversation with them observed them filing into another room where the meeting was held. Those individuals comprised the leading members in Apparatus A and among them was NATHAN WIT

CHAMBERS stated that following the death of HAROLD WARE in an automobile accident in Pennsylvania, NATHAN WITT took over as leader of the espionage apparatus A.

CHAMBERS also recalled NATHAN WITT once speaking of trying to swing a decision on the National Labor Relations Board to conform to the Communist Party line. WITT, at that time, was secretary of the National Labor Relations Board.

DETAILS:

On May 19, 1952, United States Attorney MYLES LANE, Southern District of New York, filed a 39 page affidavit, together with supporting affidavits, in the United States District Court, Southern District of New York in answer to a defense motion for a new trial. Photostatic copies of this affidavit were furnished to the Bureau on May 21, 1952.

On June 4, 1952, the argument of the defendant's motion for a hearing on a new trial took place at 10:30 a.m. before Honorable HENRY J. GODDARD, United States District Judge, Southern District of New York. Attorney CHESTER LANE argued the motion for the defense and was assisted by attorneys BENJAMIN BUTLER-MISER and ROBERT B. LAMIK at the defense counsel table. United States Attorney MYLES LANE personally argued on behalf of the government and was assisted by Assistant United States Attorney ST. CLAY ROBINSON. At the conclusion of arguments, Judge GODDARD reserved decision.

On July 22, 1952, Judge HENRY GODDARD filed his opinion denying the defendant's motion for a new trial. A photostatic copy of this opinion was forwarded to the Bureau on the same date.

On July 31, 1952, attorney CHESTER LANE filed for the defendant a notice of appeal with the Clerk of the District Court, Southern District of New York. This notice set forth only the name of the appellant, the appellant's attorney, the offense for which the defendant was convicted, and the institution where he was confined. It is noted that the "New York Times" of August 1, 1952 quoted CHESTER LANE as stating that the opinion of Judge GODDARD denying the hearing "overlooked or disregarded new evidence and his ruling was improper and an abuse of his discretion". No such supplementary statement was filed with the Clerk of the District Court.

On November 7, 1952, attorney CHESTER LANE filed an appeal brief with the United States Court of Appeals, Second Circuit on behalf of the defendant. A copy of this brief was forwarded to the Bureau on November 13, 1952.

On January 7, 1953, the United States Attorney, Southern District of New York filed a brief in answer to that of the defendant before the Court of Appeals, Second Circuit. This brief was prepared by Assistant United States Attorney ROBERT MARTIN.

On January 12, 1953, all arguments on the appeal from the ruling of Judge GODDARD denying the motion for a hearing on a motion for a new trial were heard by the United States Court of Appeals, Second Circuit. The hearing

NY 65-14920

Judges were AUGUSTUS HAND, THOMAS SWAN and HAROLD CHASE. Attorney CHESTER LANE argued the defendant's motion before this court. The government's answer was argued by Assistant United States Attorney ROBERT MARTIN. Following these oral arguments the court reserved opinion.

On January 30, 1953, the United States Court of Appeals, Second Circuit confirmed the ruling of Judge MARY GORDON denying the previously described motion.

On or about January 27, 1953, Confidential Informant T-1, of known reliability, advised that in a conversation with LOUIS BUDENZ the latter informed T-1 that he knew ALGER HISS as a member of the Communist Party under another name. BUDENZ also told T-1 that he had not previously reported this information because it was something that had come to his mind during the HISS trial. According to T-1, BUDENZ stated that while having breakfast one morning during the HISS trial he noticed in the same restaurant another individual who looked familiar. On thinking over the person, BUDENZ stated it was ALGER HISS whom he knew under another name in the Communist Party. BUDENZ at this time also told T-1 that LAWRENCE DUGGAN was a concealed Communist.

On February 18, 1953, Professor LOUIS BUDENZ was interviewed by SA ROBERT S. PLANTZ. Regarding his knowledge of ALGER HISS, BUDENZ related that probably in the latter part of 1949 he was dining in the Longchamps Restaurant on Madison Avenue near St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York City. Mrs. BUDENZ was present also at the time. During the course of the meal, BUDENZ observed ALGER HISS sitting alone at a nearby table, drinking a cocktail. BUDENZ observed that he recognized this individual as HISS inasmuch as he, BUDENZ, had on earlier occasions been shown several photographs of this individual.

Up until this time BUDENZ did not realize that he had ever seen HISS in the flesh before. In the restaurant BUDENZ, while casually observing HISS, noted that the latter appeared to be waiting for someone and was becoming more and more impatient. As a symptom of his impatience, HISS occasionally would shake or toss his head in what BUDENZ called a rather unusual manner. This mannerism suddenly recalled to BUDENZ the fact that he had met HISS at a meeting of the Communist underground in New York City probably about the time of the Stalin-Hitler pact. BUDENZ stated that at that time HISS, as was the custom of the members of the underground, was using another name which BUDENZ could not recall.

According to BUDENZ, the meeting occurred in a small apartment somewhere in the vicinity of Central Park. BUDENZ believes that he saw HISS at only one such meeting and had been unable to recall HISS simply by looking at photographs of him. BUDENZ noted that had he not observed the peculiar mannerism of HISS in the restaurant he probably never would have recalled seeing HISS.

In retrospect, BUDENZ is unable exactly to date the time of the meeting but is rather sure that it occurred during the period of the Stalin-Hitler pact in the early 1940's or shortly thereafter. BUDENZ also recalled that all the persons who attended the particular meeting at which he saw HISS were either members of the underground or members of the open Communist Party.

Prior to the incident in the New York restaurant, BUDENZ stated that he had only heard from other members of the underground that HISS was a member of the Communist Party who was connected with the underground group in Washington. BUDENZ concluded by stating that the foregoing constituted his entire knowledge of ALGER HISS.

In regard to LAWRENCE HAYDEN DUGGAN, BUDENZ also stated on February 16, 1953 that he has no recollection of having stated to anyone that DUGGAN was a concealed Communist. BUDENZ said that DUGGAN could very easily have been such a concealed Communist but that he has no knowledge of this fact. BUDENZ stated that he knew DUGGAN was certainly cooperating with the Communists but he never heard anyone state in so many words that DUGGAN was a Communist. BUDENZ did say, however, that he was "morally certain" that DUGGAN was a Communist although he has no proof.

It is BUDENZ's recollection that in about 1943 JACOB GOLOS, during a conversation relating to the Communist underground in Washington, made some statement to the effect that "DUGGAN is working with us". At that time GOLOS was considering BUDENZ as a courier for travel between the New York headquarters of the underground and various persons in the underground in Washington, D. C. It was during these conversations that the name of DUGGAN came up as a person who "was working with us".

BUDENZ stated that he never, to his recollection, met DUGGAN personally. BUDENZ reiterated that he is in no position to place DUGGAN in the concealed Communist category and to the best of his recollection has never so stated.

On February 20, 1953, Assistant United States Attorney ROBERT MARTIN, Southern District of New York, advised that in conversation with CHESTER T. LANE, HISS' attorney, he learned that LANE had filed within the previous day or two a record of appeal to the Supreme Court in connection with the Court of Appeal's ruling on the motion for a new trial, Mr. MARTIN stated that LANE indicated his petition was presently being printed and would be forwarded to the Supreme Court within a week or so. Mr. MARTIN has advised that this petition for a Writ of Certiorari may possibly be heard before the close of the spring calendar of the Supreme Court in May or June 1953.

On July 29, 1952, United States Attorney MYLES LANE advised that he planned no action concerning the possible prosecution of LOUIS J. LEISMAN for perjury until final action was taken by defense attorneys concerning their appeal.

On February 25, 1953, Assistant United States Attorney ROBERT MARTIN advised that in view of the defense's stated intentions of petitioning for a Writ of Certiorari before the United States Supreme Court, a decision on possible prosecution of LEISMAN would be held in abeyance pending final disposition by the Supreme Court.

AUTHOR OF PLANNED BOOK REGARDING
ALGER HISS CASE

I thought you would be interested in the following information concerning a planned book on the Alger Hiss case by the Earl of Jowitt, England.

Mr. George Sokolsky, news columnist, writing in the Washington, D. C., Times-Herald of November 24, 1952, discussed plans by the Earl of Jowitt to write a book concerning the Alger Hiss case. Mr. Sokolsky mentioned that the Earl of Jowitt had produced a preliminary article wherein he questioned the reliability of Whittaker Chambers.

In a review of "Witness," the book by Whittaker Chambers, the Earl of Jowitt indicated Chambers was "primarily a neurotic" and not convincing in all respects.

The planned book by the Earl of Jowitt on the Alger Hiss case will reportedly be published about May, 1953, and there is indication Doubleday and Company of New York will publish it in the United States. It is reported that Doubleday and Company has agreed to absolve the Earl of Jowitt from all liability in any subsequent libel action. The allegation has been received that some of the leading officials of Doubleday and Company are Communists and this being so, the Communist Party, through them and this book, will attempt to embarrass the new Administration, particularly Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who played a leading part in the Hiss case. An original draft of the book apparently contained numerous misstatements and discrepancies and is now being completely rewritten.

Senator Joseph McCarthy,

Washington, D.C.

Dear Sir:-

Thought you might be interested in the enclosed clipping taken from this week's issue of our weekly local paper, the Union Banner.

Yours very truly,

Harvey H. Bundy has a post in Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and with Alger Hiss' background, Bundy's son married Dean Acheson's daughter. So it may be possible that it was this influence that was brought to bear on Acheson to stand back of Hiss even after he had been indicted. This week's indictment of Owen Lattimore on seven counts of perjury or contempt of Congress, the sudden reversal of the Loyalty Commission in the case of John Carter Vincent, of the State Department, and friend of Lattimore finding "reasonable doubt" as to his loyalty to our government, the recent suicide of Abe Fellers of U.N., who had also held a high post in our government, the unloading of Edmund Clubb, the resignation of State Department's Phil Jessup, and the uncovering of many Red agents promoted from State Department to U.N., now in the process of being fired, begin to add up to a total that Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin was not the "character assassin" that he was smeared as being, and that the McCarran Committee which went in hot on the McCarthy charges after they had been whitewashed by another Senate (Tydings) Committee, has done a most important and patriotic job.

DATE: June 25, 1954

FROM : Director, FBI

SUBJECT: SECURITY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Reference is made to your communication dated June 23, 1954, your reference WO:VEF:am 146-200-2, with which you enclosed a copy of a letter directed to the Attorney General from the Secretary of State dated June 17, 1954, in which Mr. Dulles indicates that he has received information to the effect that Alger Hiss has been interviewed by representatives of this Bureau or the Department of Justice and requests any information of value pertaining to the Department of State obtained from such interview.

This is to advise that the files of this Bureau fail to reflect that Hiss has been interviewed concerning his own activities since he has been at Lewisburg Penitentiary; however, on December 2, 1953, he was contacted in connection with the investigation entitled "Leaman Russell Smith, with aliases, et al; Edgar Allen Moore - Victim; Crime on a Government Reservation - Assault" and furnished no information of value to this investigation. In that connection, approximately forty-six inmates of a cell block at Lewisburg Penitentiary who were in the immediate vicinity of the assault were interviewed. Amongst them was Hiss. This information is contained in the report of Special Agent George P. Gamblin dated February 9, 1954, at Philadelphia, under the afore-mentioned caption, a copy of which was furnished the Department on June 8, 1954.

It appears from the information contained in Mr. Dulles' letter that Hiss may have been interviewed within the past several months by representatives of the Department of Justice. It is suggested that you may desire to contact representatives of the Bureau of Prisons in this regard. We are interested in the results of any interviews had with Hiss by representatives of any Government agency. In the event you determine that such interviews have been conducted, it is requested that you furnish this Bureau with any information of value obtained in such interrogations.

Mrs. ALFORD stated she was director of the Museum of Art, Rhode Island School of Design, Providence, Rhode Island, where her husband JOHN ALFORD was a professor.

T-1, on August 22, 1955, advised that PRISCILLA HISS is still employed by the Doubleday Horan Book Store, New York City and that during April, May, June and July she had contributed $160 each month toward the expenses of her husband. T-1 advised that he had been in contact with the subject when she was on vacation at the farm in New Lebanon, New York.

The subject advised T-1 that she and her son, TONY HISS, are still being attended by psychiatrists. T-1 further advised that the subject impressed him as being "extremely nervous and tense." He also advised that during his visit with the HISS' at New Lebanon, he had an occasion to talk with TONY HISS and while he was doing so, PRISCILLA HISS acted nervous and "looked sickly," and began using "thee" and "thou" in her speech.

T-1 further advised that he had learned from the subject that she and her husband plan to go to Putney, Vermont on September 8, 1955. The purpose of this trip is to take TONY to school to start the school year.

T-2, who is in a position to furnish accurate information, advised on June 22, 1955, that Mrs. AGNES DeP. LOCKWOOD, 200 West 66th Street, New York City, had pledged $1,000 toward the tuition of TONY HISS at the Putney School.

Mrs. LOCKWOOD had made the request that she did not want the HISS family to know the source of this pledge.

The "New York Herald Tribune" for January 26, 1950, contains a photograph on page one of ALGER and PRISCILLA HISS with friends; MARION LEONARD LOCKWOOD, III, appears in the background of the photograph and is identified as having posted security for ALGER HISS' $10,000 bail bond.

NY 65-15867

An article by JOHN CAROL SMITH, on HISS' conviction in the same issue of the "Herald Tribune" revealed that LOCKWOOD is a friend of ALGER HISS and had signed HISS' bail bond.

T-3, who was in a position to furnish accurate information, advised that Miss AGNES CARTER FELDMAN, graduate of Bryn Mawr College, married WINSTON LOCKWOOD on January 2, 1950. Prior to her marriage, she was associated with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, where ALGER HISS was employed prior to his conviction.

T-3 advised that LOCKWOOD was the son of the Chief Trust Officer of the New York Trust Company, New York City. He stated that LOCKWOOD graduated from Yale in 1944 and that at that time (1950) he was taking a graduate course at Columbia University.

He further advised that Mrs. LOCKWOOD was very close to ALGER HISS and it was the request of Mrs. LOCKWOOD and others that prompted Mr. LOCKWOOD to sign ALGER HISS' bail bond. T-3 further advised that Mrs. LOCKWOOD, as well as her husband, had been active in eliciting subscriptions to pay HISS' expenses on appeal after his conviction.
